The argument is made, as the result of revelations before the Johnson committee, that since some foolish loans, tinged with graft, have been made in South America, that our government should cease approving or disapproving foreign loans.

Because of the relationship of such loans of American money to foreign countries to the welfare of all Americans, there should be some form of governmental scrutiny of all foreign loans, not to the extent of approving them but of disapproving them and preventing their flotation to innocent investors throughout the country when it appears that these loans are not for legitimate productive purposes, or tainted with graft or usury.

The future of foreign trade for the United States chiefly lies in this hemisphere, and also in the Orient, unless conditions in the East become chaotic. Europe suffers from over-production of most of the things we produce, and wants to sell in our markets about what American producers need to sell, and on a basis of cheap production against which our standards of life cannot stand up.

But in Central and South America are fields for American investment and development of a kind for which our own experience as creators of values from virgin resources peculiarly fits Americans. Central and South America chiefly produce what we cannot produce at home, and there a natural demand exists for what we produce and which these countries do not. Here is a basis of fair and mutually profitable exchange, which will contribute in the long run to the raising of standards of living in Latin America without degradation of standards in the United States.

An example of this is found in the Argentine Republic, where American loans aggregate about a billion dollars. These debts are good. The money has been used for development in the Argentine. European nations, especially Germany and England, had cornered most of the trade in the Argentine when Americans began the policy of extending legitimate credits. Now the United States leads in trade there.

South America has the area and resources to maintain a population many times that now living there. It is almost as undeveloped as our country west of the Mississippi prior to the Civil War. There are railroads to be built, mines to be developed and many other resources to be utilized. We have treated this situation only casually; it has not been a matter of national concern. But it should be. Americans should be in these countries, not as exploiters to the detriment of these nations, but in helpful co-operation with them. We need better shipping facilities, closer friendly relations, and much less of the disposition which has been shown by financial adventurers to engage for profit in the political machinations which have cost these countries so much in disturbance of their stability.

It is essential to this purpose.

OLD SETTLER'S DAY
PROGRAM PROMISES ENJOYMENT TO ALL

Plans for the annual celebration Feb. 22 are complete, according to the chairman of the day, Dr. F. R. Anderson. The two-day celebration will start Saturday night with a dance in the high school annex. Costumes are in order for this function but those who have no costumes are urged to attend any way.

Monday morning at 9:45 will be the start of the Old Settler's celebration proper. The high school band will play several selections at the Grammar School.

A new departure in the morning program will be instituted this year by having a half hour of music starting at 10:30 a. m. The committee in charge of the morning program have secured the services of Miss Helen Kalas, Mr. Jan Kalas, Stephen Merrill and Miss Marjorie Johns. Lovers of music should endeavor to be present and hear the program which these artists have prepared. The Kalas family are well known over the valley, having appeared in many concerts. They are considered among the best musicians in this part of the country. Stephen Merrill will be remembered thru his work in the Atwater Kent auditions of 1930, having placed second for men in the National finals. Miss Johns is at present a music student in the State College in San Jose where she has established a reputation as a pianist of note.

The doors will be closed to the auditorium promptly at 10:30 and no one will be admitted after that time except between numbers, until the musical program is completed. Therefore be in your seats at the appointed time. The following program will be rendered: "To The Birds" Helen Kalas; "Sur le lac" and "Spanish Dance", Jan Kalas; "Ah Moon of My Delight" and "Come Sweet Morning" Stephen Merrill. Two duets will be sung by Helen Kalas and Stephen Merrill. "Sylvia" and "Morning". Marjorie Johns will play the accompaniment and Jan Kalas the obligato. Next will follow "America" by the audience; invocation by the Rev. A. S. Buell; address of welcome, Dr. F. R. Anderson; principal address, Dr. Oswald McCall, subject,—"Silhouette of the Dawn"; "America the Beautiful" by the audience, and the benediction by Rev. J. H. Bennett.

Immediately following the lunch intermission the parade will be held, after which the tree-planting ceremony and pageant will take place at the grammar school grounds.

The high school band will open the ceremony playing "America" with the entire crowd singing. A poem written by Robert Kingery Buell for this occasion will be read Wm. A. Sherman, of San Francisco and past master of the state Masonic lodge will deliver the dedicatory address. The scouts will be assembled in uniform.

SURPRISE PROGRAM TO BE FEATURED AT KIWANIS LUNCHEON

Abraham Lincoln, the Savior of His Country, was the topic of the hour at Kiwanis today with The Rev. David Todd Gillmor of Los Gatos the speaker. He cited the statement of the great commoner that "all I am or ever hope to be, I owe to my mother." His home training was his real school and made him the most universally beloved in all nations. Kiwanian Gillmor urged his fellow members to live and strive for the best in their community and state. Just as no nation could live half slave and half free, so too this nation cannot continue to live its best until the great spirit of brotherhood as exemplified in Kiwanis has encircled the globe.

A surprise program has been prepared and C. H. Whitman will serve as chairman for next Tuesday.

and tea for Old Timers which follows the tree-planting. A short skit will be put on by local talent. A baseball game and a horse shoe pitching contest are also on the afternoon program.

The evening entertainment begins at 8 o'clock and will be held in the grammar school auditorium. The first performance is a one-act comedy, "Evening Dress Indispensable," presented by "Campbell Collegians." A brilliant display given by Professor Tacovich will be a special feature of the evening. A three-act Chinese fantasy, "The Bringer of the Bells," will be presented by grammar school pupils. The original fantasy is written and directed by Miss Adele Grandeman, teacher at the grammar school. Sixty grammar school children are in the cast; Jewell Abbott takes the lead, assisted by Alice Modry, Lois Bohnett, Jimmy Rambo, Ernest Felice, Geraldine Jurrass, Frank Covey and Jeanette Abbott.

News Review of Current Events the World Over

Al Smith Willing to Accept Presidential Nomination Again—Developments in Shanghai War—Disarmament Plans Submitted to Conference.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

SHOULD the Democratic party, as represented by the national convention in Chicago, so desire, Alfred E. Smith is willing to be again its candidate for the Presidency. That was the statement put out by the former governor of New York, and for a few days its reverberations drowned out the roar of Japan's guns at Shanghai, in this country. Declaring that he owed it to his friends to make clear his position, Mr. Smith's statement continued: "If the Democratic national convention after careful consideration should decide that it wants me to lead, I will make the fight; but I will not make a pre-convention campaign to secure the support of delegates. "By action of the Democratic national convention of 1928 I am the leader of my party in the nation. With a full sense of the responsibility thereby imposed I shall not in advance of the convention either support or oppose the candidacy of any aspirant for the nomination."

To the reporters the ex-governor said: "I don't know how I can stop anybody who wants to do anything for me. No, I won't stop them. That would be biting off more than I could chew."

Political wiseacres immediately assumed that Mr. Smith's statement meant he had joined the "stop Roosevelt" movement; that the New York delegation would be split up; that the nomination of the present governor of the Empire state would be difficult to bring about, if not impossible, and that there would be a deadlock in the convention comparable to that in the Democratic national gathering in New York city nearly eight years ago. Supporters of Mr. Roosevelt refused to be discouraged and began to redouble their efforts. Republican leaders expressed their quiet delight in the situation, believing it enhanced the chances of success for their party in November.

Then came a new development that left the prophets all up in the air. Mr. Smith made an unannounced friendly call on Governor Roosevelt in Albany—the first in a long time—and after he left the governor emerged all smiles, declining to say anything about the conversation that had been held. The guessers then guessed that Mr. Smith had agreed to throw his support to Mr. Roosevelt at the earliest opportunity and had been promised therefor a position in the cabinet if the governor became President.

REINFORCED by the arrival of a large contingent of army troops, the Japanese kept up their attack on Chapel, native quarter of Shanghai, and the Woosung forts and village. But the Chinese defending forces also were strengthened and their resistance was surprising to neutral observers. They refused to be driven from Chapel, though it was a region of battered ruins; and the garrison of the Woosung forts held out under an almost continuous rain of shells that smashed against their mud walls and blew up their ammunition stores. The apparent object of the Japanese was to silence the forts and land troops there for an advance on Shanghai from the north. But for the time this was prevented by Chinese artillery and machine gun nests and barbed wire entanglements.

Vice Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura, the new commandant of the Japanese naval forces in the Shanghai area, arrived at the scene of conflict and talked diplomatically of his intention to "prevent further trouble and settle the matters as quickly as possible in co-operation with the representatives of other countries."

Shells from the Chapel battle area frequently fell in the international settlement, and protests of the powers were unavailing, as usual. The American Thirty-first regiment went on duty patrolling a part of Shanghai.

EVENTS in Japan showed there was not complete unanimity concerning the government's policy. Twenty-five students at the Imperial university in Tokyo were arrested for participating in a demonstration in which handbills were distributed urging the people to "stop this imperialistic war!" The demonstration was believed to be the first protest against the military operations in China since the Manchurian campaign began.

Junnosuke Inouye, financier, liberal statesman and leader of the Minseitō (opposition) party's campaign for the general election, February 20, was assassinated by a youth indirectly connected with the reactionary "patriotic" elements responsible for most of the recent political murders.

VARIOUS schemes for the restoration of peaceful conditions in Shanghai were put forward during the week and either discarded or taken under consideration. Dr. W. W. Yen again appealed to the council of the League of Nations to check Japan and received a scolding from the president of the council, Joseph Paul-Boncour, because he had not strictly observed the rules laid down for complainants.

Joseph Paul-Boncour

Said the Frenchman: "I would like to remind the delegate from China that the statement he has made does not replace the full statement of his case with all the relevant facts and paper which are required under article XV of the covenant, the article under which he himself appealed to the council."

Yen submitted quietly to the rebuke, but Doctor Liu, Chinese minister to Berlin, jumped up angrily. "You other powers are siding with Japan," he cried, "because you are afraid of being kicked out yourself. You want your share of the trade. If you don't be careful, you'll be kicked out, all of you, into the sea."

GETTING down to business, the Geneva disarmament conference in Geneva heard set forth the views of all the great powers. Andre Tardieu on behalf of France proposed that the League of Nations be provided with an armed force to enforce peace on the world, and emphasized the French refusal to disarm without security assurances. For Great Britain Sir John Simon offered a disarmament plan including abolition of submarines and gas and chemical warfare, and he criticized the French proposals.

The United States came next, and Ambassador Gibson made a fine speech, submitting a program summarized thus by the State department:

The American government advocates consideration of the draft convention as containing the outlines for a convenient basis for discussion, while expressing its entire willingness to give full consideration to any supplementary proposals calculated to invoke the end we all seek.

We suggest the possibility of prolonging the existing naval agreements concluded at Washington and London, and we advocate completing the latter as soon as possible by the adherence of France and Italy.

We advocate proportional reduction from the figures laid down in the Washington and London agreements on naval tonnage as soon as all parties to the Washington agreement have entered this framework.

We advocate, as we long have done, the total abolition of submarines.

We will join in formulating the most effective measures to protect civilian population against aerial bombing.

We advocate the total abolition of lethal gases and bacteriological warfare.

We advocate, as I have already stated, the computation of the number of armed forces on the basis of the effectiveness necessary for the maintenance of internal order plus some suitable contingent for defense. The former are obviously impossible of reduction; the latter is a question of relativity.

We agree in advocating special restrictions for tank and heavy mobile guns; in other words, for those arms of a peculiarly offensive character.

We are prepared to consider a limitation of expenditure on material as a complementary method to direct limitation, feeling that it may prove useful to prevent a qualitative race, if and when quantitative limitation has been effected.

Chancellor Bruening for Germany made a demand for "equality" in fighting forces. Dino Grandi told of all the war tools that Italy was prepared to scrap, and was loudly applauded. And Ambassador Matsudaira assured the conference that Japan is as eager as ever in the cause of disarmament.

ANOTHER unit in the administration's economic program was brought forward when, at the instance of President Hoover, a bill was introduced in both senate and house to revise the fundamental portion of the federal reserve act with a view to increasing the amount of money in circulation, thereby stimulating credit, forcing down the value of the dollar and sending up commodity prices. Leaders of both parties had given the measure their approval and it was introduced by Senator Glass and Representative Steagall, both Democrats.

The bill, it was explained, may be expected to accomplish the following results:

It makes a $2,500,000,000 increase in currency theoretically possible; it may release close to a billion dollars of the federal reserve system's "free gold" for use as the basis of new credit; it will make eligible for rediscount billions of dollars in paper not eligible under present regulations.

PROGRESSIVES in the senate tried to prevent the confirmation of Ira M. Ornburn, Democrat, of Connecticut, as a member of the tariff commission. Norris led the attack and after a sharp interchange between him and Moses the senate went into executive session to discuss charges against Ornburn's fitness. The progressives then were routed, the appointment being confirmed by a vote of 70 to 9.

President Hoover sent to the senate his appointment of Joseph C. Grew to be ambassador to Japan. It is expected Mr. Grew will go to Tokyo in a few weeks, for Ambassador Forbes has desired to retire for several months.

PRESIDENT HOOVER'S campaign to put an end to the hoarding of money in the United States as an effective means for the restoration of confidence and prosperity is now under way with Col. Frank Knox, publisher of the Chicago Daily News, as its director. Groundwork for the movement was laid at a conference of 60 civic leaders.

They pledged the support of 20,000,000 members of organizations they represented. Citizens willing to put "slacker dollars" to work are urged by the treasury and Reconstruction Finance corporation officials to invest in life insurance and trust funds. Federal reserve and high administration officials also have suggested the transfer of hoarded money to postal savings accounts and government bonds.

These types of investment are considered safe and certain. No money has been lost in postal savings or government bonds, and insurance, according to one treasury official, "offers a safe investment over a long period with attractive returns."

In 1930 $107,948,278.000 was invested in the United States in insurance. None of this money, according to a careful check, has been lost.

PIUS XI, who had just celebrated the tenth anniversary of his elevation to the papal throne, received on Thursday his first visit from Premier Mussolini. The day was chosen because it was the third anniversary of the signing of the Lateran treaty and concordat, and nominally the Duce called to thank the pope for the award of knighthood of the Golden Spur which made Mussolini a defender of the Catholic faith. The interview between these two strong men, who really admire each other, took place in the pope's private library and was behind closed doors. But the premier, in full uniform, was received at the Vatican with all the pomp usually accorded to visiting royalty.

REPRESENTATIVE CRISP of Georgia, acting chairman of the house ways and means committee, says revised estimates by the Treasury department show the next tax bill now under consideration must raise a total of $1,241,000,000 in additional revenue if the budget is to be balanced by the end of the fiscal year 1933.

As a result the committee expects to find it necessary to broaden the tax base to a far greater degree than had heretofore been contemplated. The imposition of a general sales tax of some sort is considered well within the realm of possibilities.

ONE of the country's most sensational murder cases came to a close when a jury in Phoenix, Ariz., brought in a verdict of guilty against Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd, accused of killing, dismembering and shipping in trunks her friends, Mrs. Le Roi and Miss Hedvig Samuelson. The jury fixed the woman's punishment at death. Mrs. Judd's only defense was a plea of insanity, and this the jurors disregarded.

pose, however, that we should cease weakening on the Monroe Doctrine and in toleration of therevolutionary movements which not only endanger foreign, but domestic life and property. We have had much agitation looking forward to the decline of American and the growth of foreign influence in this hemisphere. We have had too much talk about our unwillingness to take a firm stand when militarists and politicians in these countries ride rough shod over constitutional forms. We have had too much imputation of American motives in this hemisphere right here at home among that class of political crisis which always assumes that whatever this country does, is wrong.

The United States has always maintained, through its greater wealth and naval strength, a certain position of friendly guardianship in this hemisphere. The oft repeated statement that this has been for the purpose of working our own will and ends is refuted by the well known fact that with the power to do so, we have not seized a foot of land in this hemisphere by military means from any one of the many independent nations of the New World since the Mexican War. Of course this country was accused by our domestic auslanders of inciting the Panama revolution. When corrupt officials of Colombia, partly through foreign connivance, undertook to repudiate a solemn treaty with the United States and prevent the carrying out of this great waterway project, of more importance to Colombia and to Latin-America generally than to the United States, the Panamanians had plenty of reason for revolting, since they stood to be heavily damaged, and Panama exists as a free republic where we exercise rights only by treaty.

In Cuba we did a thing unexampled in history in liberating that republic and then giving it independence. The attitude of the United States toward its many weaker neighbors has been a policy that would be utterly inconceivable in Europe, and it has been only the Monroe Doctrine that has prevented the absorption of these weak nations into European hegemony.

GLARES
and is bad for his eyes

ANY school child knows what's wrong with this picture.

It shows an example of poor lighting—and this kind of lighting is in most homes today.

Poor lighting is a handicap in life. It causes eye-strain. It makes the studios child sleepy and he wants to go to bed early. His school work suffers.

To avoid glare, shade all your lights. But also make sure that you have enough light to permit you to see clearly. You should have an abundance of shaded light in each room, especially in the kitchen. Good lighting is cheap. In the living-room it costs but 1 1/2 cents an hour.

Proper lighting is easy to have. P. G. and E. lighting specialists will gladly advise you.

Dealers in modern lighting units also know the value of an abundance of shaded light. Investigate. You will find it worth your while.

Section of modern lighting unit that directs raw light to ceiling, diffuses it evenly over the entire room and correctly controls the light.

Diffusing bowl enclosing electric lamp prevents glare and eye-strain. Excellent method of controlling light.

John Lund and Family Returning To Campbell

Friends of Mr. and Mrs.
John Lund are welcoming them back to Campbell as they recently purchased a home in the Hedgegard tract on Hamilton avenue and last week moved down from Alameda where they have been living since their return from their European trip.

Twelve years ago this month the Lund family came to Campbell where they resided for six years. Mr. Lund built and operated the service station opposite the high school which he sold to Habi-well and Jones when they moved to a mountain ranch
beyond Los Gatos.

Delightful Dessert Bridge Party Held At Peak's Tea Room

Mrs. L. J. Carboni, Mrs.
Emma Dalvit, Miss Helah
Laird and Miss Anne Schulte presided over a very delightful dessert bridge at Mrs.
Peak's Tea Room on Winchester Road Friday afternoon.

The guests were seated at five small tables prettily appointed with dainty lines an pink and green ware. Tall tapers in pastel green and yellow in glass holders centered the tables, and the same colors appeared in the refreshments. Place cards and and Mrs. Lund and their daughter, Miss Carlyn, a student at U. C. extend them a hearty welcome.

tallies were suggestive of the approaching Washington anniversary. Bowls of narcissi, hyacinths and torch lilies were attractively placed about the room.

Those who enjoyed the pleasant occasion were Mesdames G. W. Burrows, D. H.
Cramer, E. R. Kennedy, W.
H. Stray, G. S. Robson, G. L.
Parso, M. E. Purmort, G. W.
Page, S. M. King, C. H.
Whitman, H. C. Smith, J. W.
Turner, Laura Allen and the hostesses, all of Campbell.

Mrs. G. R. Stray of Bakers-field, Mrs. Wendell Thomas and Mrs. F. H. Hartley of San Jose, and the latter's sister, Miss Lillian Uttley of England.

The Ada Rebekah lodge will hold their regular meeting tonight at the I. O. O. F. hall.

Adopt Science's Newest
Protection, a "10 Second"
Penetrating Antiseptic that Reaches the Hiding Germs!

Germs usually attack through the mouth. Take no chances. Be safe when you mingle with the crowds. Rinse your mouth and gargle every morning and night with one part Extol and 2 parts water. Extol kills germs faster than any ordinary antiseptic yet known. It reaches parts that other antiseptics miss, because it penetrates the mucous membrane and kills
the germs that lie
hidden underneath
the outer layer of mucosa. Get a bottle of Extol today and be forearmed against germs and winter
ills. A McKesson &

SPRING FEVER

from your car

A SPRING Tonic Tune-up is a good thing for your Ford—and we are experts at prescribing the right medicine and the right treatment for anything that can possibly go wrong in a Ford.

The Ford car has a steel constitution—but heavy carbon deposits, carburetor or distributor out of adjustment, worn-out oil or grease, or unevenly adjusted shock absorbers are enough to make any car feel low.

Let us make a thorough examination. There's no charge for that—and as we fill the prescription ourselves, its cost is very low.

SPRING TUNE-UP

Carbon removed, valves ground! Crankcase, transmission and rear flushed and replenished with full-bodied lubricant.
Front wheels repacked with fresh lubricant. Carburetor tuned. Distributor and spark plugs cleaned and adjusted.
Fuel line and battery checked.
